HISTORY

From the beginning it was back in 1809, two hundred years ago... Prince Mamia V Gurieli (1809-1826), last ruler of Guria principality in Western Georgia, took great interest in transforming and developing the agricultural sector.

GURIA, GEORGIA

Following the advice given by the French botanists Andre Michaux and his son Francois Andre Michaux, who were the first to bring the tea plant to the United States in 1799, the Prince ordered the first Tea - Camellia Sinensis samples. These were brought to his botanical garden by the Scotsman Jacob Montague Marr, together with other exotic plants. Cultivation of this once unknown plant has laid the grounds for the development of what in the following decades became one of the biggest agricultural industries in Georgia.

ABOUT US

“GreenGold – TEA EXPORT COMPANY” was founded in 2016 and has rehabilitated up to 25 hectares of abandoned tea plants, which are located on the high mountains in the region of Guria, Georgia. This is one of the most famous region with it’s high quality tea in the country. This is the place where high mountain fresh air meets the sea breeze and creates the best climate.

High quality because Georgian plantations are well-aged and seed-grown which adds complexity to the taste and flavour. In addition, cold winters reduce the tea growing season in Georgia to only seven months, which gives bushes time to rest and gather strength.

Tea plants are chemical free and all of the harvests are done by hand. Our special European products have completely different aroma and taste comparing to “well-known” Asian tea.
